Scarcely had the rear portion of the structure collarsed when a tongue of flame started up from the boiler rit and reacting out as it ascended, communicated with the splintered wreckage, and immediately after with the standing walls. Soon the entire factory was in flames,

Death and Sacrifice.

Instant death was the Dite of many who went down with the floors that collapsed. A large number of mea, and wemen who, were working near the supports were alive after the floors and walls fell. From these unfortunates cross of agony and terror went up. Almisst all had been caught between broker, 'timbers, lighter wooden wreckage and heavy pleess of machinery. A few persons succeeded in extricating themselves from the wreckage, but more were rotisted to death. By this time nearby clitzens had arrived to assist the employees who escaped, in the rescue of their fellows. This task, became momentarily; nace difficult and perilous, for the heat from the fire was almost unbearable. Fly the use of long pleess of timbers the rescuers were able to raise parts of the 'weckage and thereby release some of the imprisoned men and women, and then by rushing into the smoke pull them. Then it was that z cts of sacrifice and heroism were seen. Then the fire and him. Stretching out his arms, he lifted several girls, one by one, and passed them to rescuers. Then the fire had him, and he died.

A woman who was entangled in a shoe machine, cried out i hat she was dying, and commanded the rescuers to attend to others who might live. She begged her.

Among the first to a rrive on the 'scene was Rev. James O'Rourke, curate at St. Margaret's Etoman Catholic Church, nearby. At the risk of his life he removed seven persons from the ruins before the fire had reached them, and was returning for the eighth time when he fainted from the effects of the smike and the shock. Father O'Rourke administered the last rites of the church to many Catholies both to those who were saved and both to those who were saved and the who later perished. Father tourke said to-night:

"It was terrible, especially so because a moment later, with our clothing acorched, we were ordered away by the chief of the fire department, and were reluctantly compelled to leave the poor man to his fate.

"Just before leaving I saw at least afteen of the imprisoned operatives, some already suffering untold agonles from the flames, which were actually cooking their flesh, and others watching with terror-stricken eyes the faste of their companions, knowing that a moment or two would bring to them similar suffering, and then death."

Houses Rent Asunder.

The house to the north of the factory, through which the exploded boller crashed, was owned and occupied by David W. Rockwell, the engineer in charge of the boller, who was among the killed. The house was defacilished, the roof being ripped off and two walls torn down. Mrs. Rockwell, who was sitting by the kitchen stove, had a miraculous escape from fleath, receiving many cuts from flying bits of timber when the boiler crashed through the rear portion of her house.

Mrs. Rockwell snatched up her two children, who were uninjured, and started for the home of the nearest neighbor. Mrs. Etta Hood. She found this cottage had been practically rent asunder by the boiler, the head of which was buried in the middle of the structure. Miss Ella Pratt, seventy-eight years of age, a relative of the Hoods, was alone in the house.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 21, 2;17 A. M.—The latest dispatches from Manchuria indicate that the retreat of the Russian army is being conducted uneventfully. The last few days were unmarked by any fighting of a serious nature. Both the Russians and the Japanese at this stage seem to consider that marching is more important than fighting. The Russians, however, are neglecting no precautions to impede pursuit and hamper the construction of permanent Japanese lines of supply.

The last two days have been utterly without incident, except for the removal of the censor to Kudzihu Pass. The Russian rear guard is retreating slowly, and engaging in occasional skirmishes. It has now reached a position twenty-seven miles north of Tie Pass. The Japanese are slowly advancing, without pressing the Itussians. Reports of a wide turning movement by the Japanese are no longer being received. There is increasing difficulty in securing reliable information beyond the limits in which scouting parties are active, on account of the defection of many C.* ness to the Japanese side. Many natives, who have been employed as servants by Russian officers, have run away, and other consequences of the evacuation of Mukden are noticeable in the attitude of the Chinese.
